Premier Balfour Warns the : House to Be Liberal.

Possibility of War Is Not to without effect Be Overlooked.

War Must Be Named.

London, March 1.-In the course of a discussion of the naval estimates in the house of commons tonight, Premier Balfour, while admitting the magnitude of the estimates, said the house should not only consider the amount, but should watch the general European and Asiatic situation, which alone could justify what the country was asked to expend.

The country should not lose sight of the possibility of war between Great Britain and two great maritime powers which could hardly end without great losses to both the enemy and Great Brit-

Continuing, Mr. Balfour said he was reluctant to mention the possibility of war. He did not think such a dreadful contingency was one which they at present had any reason to apprehend; but when talk ing of the navy they must also be talking of the possibilities of war and he was forced when indicating the general outgovernment to ask for this sacrifice to indicate possibilities which did not exist twenty-five years ago. There was no posdble comparison between the dependence Great Britain placed on her navy which was defensive and the dependence placed Britain's policy had been to see what other nations were doing in the way of laying down ships and to immediately make a reply. So long as the admiralty was careful not to enforce other countries, but simply to follow suit, insuring that other countries did not outstrip Great Britain in the race for naval superio Mr. Balfour believed the country would support parliament in the expenditure The vote for the effectiveness of the navy was then agreed to.
